

Stan Smith and JoAnne Russell to speak at Tennis and Life Clinic

Stan Smith, a former #1 ranked singles tennis player in the world and JoAnne Russell, a former Wimbledon doubles champion, will be the featured presenters at the Tennis and Life Clinic. Hosted by the Northwestern Tennis Association, the Tennis and Life Clinic will be held at Eagan High School in Eagan, MN from 8:45 a.m. to 5:45 p.m. on Saturday, April 9th.

Currently the Associate Director of USTA Player Development, Smith has overseen the development of America's top tennis prospects, including Todd Martin and Lindsay Davenport.

Aside from being the #1 singles player in the world in both 1971 and 1972, Smith's accomplishments include winning both the Wimbledon (1972) and US Open (1971) singles titles. He was also a five-time grand slam doubles champion (including four US Open titles).

JoAnne Russell won the Wimbledon doubles title in 1977. She is the reigning 35s doubles champion at both Wimbledon and the US Open and is a sports commentator for ABC Sports and the Sportschannel.

Other headliners for the clinic include Ross Case, a former Wimbledon (1977) and Australian Open (1974) doubles champion and Pete Collins, the USPTR's doubles expert.

For registration or other information on the Tennis and Life Clinic, please contact the Northwestern Tennis Association at 612-546-0709 or 1-800-536-NWTA.

Your roster is here

In this issue, you'll find the 1994 edition of the Senior Tennis Players Club Membership Roster. Please check your listing and make sure that it's correct. If it isn't call me, Nancy Kaminski, at 781-3271, and I'll correct your membership information.

We like to keep on top of where our members are, so if you move during the year, let me know so you won't miss one issue of the Senior Tennis Times, and your tennis friends will know how to get in touch with you. As you know, we publish monthly corrections and additions to the membership roster.

Keep your roster handy, and remember to save the monthly change-and-addition page from the Times. That way you'll always be current.

Are you interested in forming a summer league?

STPC is exploring the idea of forming a 6-team league for the summer months, for an eight to ten week season. Each team would have 6-8 members, skill levels 2.5 to 3.5, split evenly between men and women. Matches would consist of men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles, and mixed doubles.

If you would be interested in joining this summer league, or just want more information, call John Stecklein (644-8304) or Charlie Peterson (471-9524). They're trying to estimate the interest level in this new activity.

BASELINE

BY JOHN STECKLEIN,
STPC PRESIDENT

Welcome back to all of you who were astute enough and enterprising enough to take a vacation down south during January. We are certain that you had a wonderful vacation, but we are really sorry that you missed all of the excellent, fun-filled freezing opportunities while you were gone. However, for those of us who stayed, our time will come!

At our January meeting, the Board authorized me to appoint an ad hoc advisory committee to which I may turn for advice when decisions are needed on routine matters that come up between our bimonthly meetings. This committee was also charged to examine the bylaws of the club, and to make any suggestions for changes, additions, or deletions that seem desirable. These modified bylaws will then be brought to the full Board for possible further modification and eventual rejection or adoption by the new Board, which will take over on April 12. I had recommended this review and possible modification of the bylaws, to make certain that our operation at the present time is consistent with the bylaws in all respects. Current members of the advisory committee are: Holger Christiansen, Bernice Hanson, Sue Larson, Matthew Little, and Robert Metcalf. Since two of these members will leave the Board as of April 12, new members will be appointed to replace them.

A member called me and requested some TV network telephone numbers or addresses to use in calling to encourage more broadcasts of tennis matches, especially doubles matches, as I had suggested in my January column. The numbers are:

- CBS Sports
51 West 52nd Street, New York, NY 10019. Phone 212-975-4321
- NBC Sports
30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York NY 10020. Phone 212-664-4444
- ABC Sports
77 West 66th St, 9th Floor, New York, NY 10023. Phone 212-456-7777

Be sure to plan for the Spring Indoor Tennis Party on March 26, and for the annual dinner meeting on April 29. Mark your calendars if you have not already done so.

Two other exciting events have been proposed to the Club: one is a tennis cruise through the Caribbean late this year or early in 1995. The Board is looking into the possibility. The other is a Team Tennis League this summer. Requests for indications of interest in these activities will be placed in the newsletter. Please be sure to let us know if you have an interest in either of these activities, when the announcements are made.

In Memoriam

Oz Fretz

Oz Fretz passed away on January 26, 1994 at the age of 68 years, 7 months, and 23 days. Those of us that knew and played tennis with Oz will always remember him for a number of things: his competitive spirit, scorching fast serves and ground strokes, his happy, friendly, warm and lovable nature; his greeting whenever he met a person, "Hello, my friend;" his interesting, entertaining, and comical real-life stories of his youth and his time in the Marine Corps. Oz was a very special friend, and will be missed by all of his tennis friends. Our sympathies and prayers go out to his family and his lovely wife, Nancy Fretz.

Francis ("Dave") Davidson

Francis ("Dave") Davidson, 74, of Maplewood, was one of a group of STPC members vacationing at the Naples Bath and Tennis Club in Florida. He played tennis every morning, and was known for his slice, which few could return. Dave became ill and died in the Fort Myers Hospital on February 17th of heart failure. Our sympathies go out to his wife, Marianne (also an STPC member), and their four children.

Are you a "rude-nik?" by Dave Rickert

When it comes to social doubles, most of us are courteous on and off the court. We say "please," "thank you," and "you're welcome." We compliment each other's good shots and shake hands after the match is over. In general, we're kind and considerate toward our opponents.

Except, when it's their turn to serve and we have the balls.

There is something about the simple process of returning balls from one side of the net to the other between points that seems to bring out an assortment of rude characters. These "rude-niks" not only show bad manners, but waste time, slow down the game and upset the flow and rhythm of the action.

Rude-niks come in many forms, each with an individual style. See how many of these characters you recognize — perhaps even in yourself. (Ladies, insert she for he, her for him, etc.)

The Ambusher. He can't wait for the server to get to the baseline and turn around, so he fires the balls at his back. This is followed by the server scrambling to chase the balls to the back wall or fence.

The Shotgunner. Doesn't care where the balls are going, just wants to get rid of them. Usually at least one ends up on an adjacent court or behind the back curtain.

The Machinegunner. A variation of the Shotgunner, but features rapid-fire forehands (three balls is best) bam, bam, bam. He sees this as a way to test the server's reflexes and juggling ability.

The Crapshooter. Similar to the Shotgunner, but he throws the balls across by hand. Let the balls fall where they may.

The Gambler. This guy can't hit the broad side of a barn, but figures he can get the ball to the net man from the back wall, off the wrong foot. The house usually wins, with over half falling into the net. Those that make it over are mostly fumbled by the net man anyway.

The Practice-When-You-Can Man. Anytime he's got a ball and a racket is a good time to hone his groundstrokes — usually the one he's having trouble with at the moment. Server beware.

The If-At-First-You-Don't-Succeed Man. He's the net man trying to scoop the ball by the net over the net. Scoop, net, scoop, net, scoop, net. He finally gives up and throws it over by hand.

The Optimist. He and his partner haven't been within eight feet of the net all day, but that ball that's 18 inches from the net has to be picked up or surely one of them will step on it. Yeah, right.

The Back-At-You Fault Caller. This is the Practice-When-You-Can Man receiving serve. He likes to punctuate every "out" call with a smashing return. This is not only good practice, but effectively upsets the rhythm of the server — especially if someone has to chase an errant return that's on the court.

The Third Ball Fanatic. He simply can't play unless all three balls are in someone's hand or pocket. Doesn't matter that it's safely out of play — he has to get that ball. Let the server wait.

The In-Your-Face Thirdballer. He not only insists on getting the third ball — he insists that the server takes it whether he wants it or not. No matter how many times the server tosses it aside or to his partner, no matter how many times he says "I've got two." — this guy insists on making him deal with it.

Anyone sound familiar? If you regularly play in a doubles league, no doubt you've seen many of these characters.

Less familiar is the player we can call —

Mr. Manners. He simply treats the opponents like he does his own partner. He knows if the server wants two balls or three. He waits until the server is ready, then gets him the balls gently on one bounce. If a third ball or errant ball isn't needed or in anyone's way, he leaves it. If he does pick it up, he puts it in his pocket. If he's near the net man, he may give it to him as it's not delaying the game or distracting the server. If he or his partner causes the server to wait between serves, he says "Take two," or "First serve." He does all he can to reduce ball-chasing to a minimum and keep the game flowing. People like playing with this guy.

After all, tennis is difficult enough without having to put up with rude-niks too!

think spring!

If you are interested in a summer women's league to play on call Shirley at 433-3583. The now famous Hit 'N Giggle League is coming to life again after hibernating for the winter. Our summer season starts in June. We play through August — outdoors, of course. There is no cost to you except suntan lotion and sunglasses, sometimes hats and visors. We do have fun and competition — so we hope you will join us.

golden agers looking for subs

The Golden Agers, members 80 years old and over, have four players ready to go. They would like more so they would have replacements to call on. Please call Dick Pratt at 433-3583 if you are willing to join them.

courts at northland south

Northland South has two courts available several days of the week. If you are looking for a place to play, form a group and call Ross, the manager, or the Northland Front Desk at 831-2660. If you have any questions, call Dick Pratt at 433-3583.

revised indoor schedules

Appearing in this issue are revised indoor tennis schedules. As you look at the schedule, you can see that we've added two new columns of information — whether the sessions are for men, women, or both, and the skill level of play. We hope this will help you in finding a congenial group to play with!

Congratulations!

The latest STPC members to complete twelve lessons are:

Mary Vanderscheuren
Alice Steinhagen
Robert Covington

Remember, notify your instructor when you've completed twelve lessons.

University of Minnesota Tennis

The tennis team at the University of Minnesota has been a winner for the past 10 years or more, during the coaching regimes of Jerry Noyce and now David Goetz. Minnesota has won the Big Ten title six times since 1980, most recently last year when we were undefeated in Big Ten play and ranked in the 20ths nationally.

The squad of players is led by Paul Pridmore, a senior who is the #1 player. He won the singles at the recent Winter Carnival tournament. He is supported with a talented group, including players from the Twin Cities.

The tennis season is underway. To date, we have lost only to Tennessee and Kansas, Top 30 teams. The remaining home matches are as follows:

- March 11, 6:30 p.m., vs. Penn State, at the 98th St. Club
- April 15, 6:30 p.m. vs. Purdue, 98th St. Club
- April 16, 6:30 p.m., vs. Illinois, 98th St. Club
- April 23, noon, vs. Ohio State, Rochester
- May 5-8: Big Ten Championships, 98th St Club

The team would like support by attendance at the matches by our senior citizens, for which there is a nominal charge. For those who want to be more involved, there is the Baseline Boosters Club. For more information, call Bev Reed at 625-3880 at the University.
