Four months free for new members of STPC

STPC is offering a bonus of four months free for new members! The $20 dues paid by new members who join STPC between September and December will apply to the 1996 membership year.

The purpose of this one-time bonus offer is to give more seniors the benefits of STPC membership — the opportunity to take lessons, participate in drills, and to find others to play tennis with all year round.

Glen Gullikson, membership recruitment chair, is planning various projects to interest seniors in becoming active members. Among other things, he has talked with Charlie Boone, well-known radio announcer and member of STPC, about an exhibition match sometime this fall.

Glen is available to talk with corporate retirement programs and be interviewed by local newspapers and radio and television stations. His testimonial about how his life has opened up as a result of belonging to STPC reveals a person who wants to give back to an organization important to him.

If you know someone who might want to join STPC, give them a membership application! They are available from Char Hall, VP Membership. Call Char at 474-5873. ■

Quite a day!

Inner City Tennis and David Wheaton give clinic, exhibition

On July 18, Inner City Tennis presented David Wheaton Family Day at Bucky Olson Memorial Tennis Courts in Saint Paul. Over 400 children, preschoolers through highschoolers, attended a clinic and inspirational talk given by David Wheaton. David also played an exhibition match with Kevin Wherwie, the number one NWT A player.

The children not only learn lessons on tennis, they learn lessons on life through their participation in this program.

David Wheaton, who donates money to Inner City Tennis, wanted to see the kids he's helping face to face. His generosity and devotion is a telling tribute to this fine tennis player and human being.

Inner City Tennis is supported by STPC, and of course, our STPC pro, Ernie Greene, is very involved. ■

Ernie Greene was honored by members of his tennis drills who attended summer camp wearing green teeshirts emblazoned with the motto, "Ernie's Gang." Pictured are, front L-R: Nancy Lindeman, Sharon Bernhagen, Ernie Greene, Diane Lehman, Martha Schlader. Back L-R: Luther Prince, Jack Lindeman, Dorothy Trow, Don Smith, Phyllis Barrett, Marita Lindman.

AD IN by Sue Larson STPC President

This may sound dramatic, but I believe STPC has changed many of our member's lives. Some of us are healthier as a result of belonging to this organization.

Now what I need from you are your stories about the changes that are yours as a result of STPC. Call me or any of our board members and share with them your valuable experiences!

Ed Sewell told me his story as we pushed grocery carts at the market the other day. Ed is a long-time tennis coach and player, but after retirement he was diagnosed as having diabetes. The physician told him to change his life style, to eat more low fat food and get more exercise. He heard about the Senior Tennis Players Club and joined. Today his diabetes is under control without insulin shots, his weight is down 15 pounds and the high point of each week is his three or sometimes four games of tennis with fellow STPC members.

As to the membership campaign, Char Hall tells me that our total membership is now nearly 1400, with only 200 new members to find to reach our goal. If you want to assist in our efforts, call Glen Gullikson at 784-4539. Along with hearing Glen's chuckle, you could try to get a commitment to be a partner on the courts.

Yes, we are moving along in our activities. We've begun a mentor program to help each new member feel welcome. We're planning a September tennis party. And don't forget, captains are waiting for your call to be a regular on their courts! ■ by Matthew Little, chairman.

The STPC-2000 committee is in the process of trying to develop a procedure for some kind of an intermediate development among new members, being introduced to tennis for the first time. We already have our 12 free lessons for them in which they are given instructions by some of the finest tennis instructors in the state. But there is a feeling among the committee that many new seniors, after completing the entry lessons are still not quite ready to be turned loose on their own. Maybe they should be provided the opportunity to be exposed to a secondary step of instructions before they will feel comfortable competing and enjoying STPC activities.

Chuck Slocum heads the subcommittee exploring a solution to this situation. If you should have ideas regarding this matter, feel free to contact Chuck. ■

Lucille Bryant, Ernie Greene win ATA titles

STPC member Lucille Bryant won the gold medal trophy in her age category at the American Tennis Association (ATA) Annual Tournament held in Jackson, Mississippi August 5-12. Ernie Greene also added another first place trophy to his collection in doubles of his age category.

Lucille is a regular STPC Team Tennis player on the Ken Shannon team. Ernie, of course, is an STPC instructor.

The ATA is one of America's oldest tennis associations, having been established in 1916 when African-American tennis players were not permitted to join or compete in the USTA events. Among its alumni and former champions are Althea Gibson and Arthur Ashe. Its national tournaments include competition of all ages from peewee to age 70 and beyond. The tournament draws players from throughout the country and the Caribbean. ■

New board member

Ed Sewell was appointed by the STPC board to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Lee Patton. Ed was a tennis coach for the Minneapolis School District for 35 years and is an active member of STPC. ■

Where does our money go?

The $20 membership fee

second in a series by Jim Tornoe, Treasurer

So now that you know what the treasurer does, let's get a little closer to your pocket and see what happens to your $20 fee.

In a nutshell (based on the average of the past four years), the fee is spent as shown below:

On an annual basis, the sum of your $20, my $20 and every other member's $20, is about $26,000 and is allocated as follows:

newsletter publication ...	$12,700	47%
tennis instruction.....	$8,300	31%
all other	$6,000	22%
total	$26,000	100%

Now I know you're just dying to know what's in "all other" (besides the monthly board parties), but you will just have to wait for next month's article:

Membership memo

by Char Hall, VP Membership

Our Mentor Program is now in operation with the goal of helping new members find a comfortable place within the organization as rapidly as possible.

We are pleased to announce that the following longtime members of STPC have agreed to serve as mentors. They will help new members in their area find lessons and playing time and otherwise orient them to our club and its activities.

Area	Mentors
Minneapolis	Jean Carey, Stockton Shaw
West Mpls suburban	Grayce Aberle, Al Anderegg, Hazel Nelson
North Mpls suburban	Jackie Rouillard, Bill Storie
South Mpls suburban	Marilyn Erickson, Cliff Northfield
Minnetonka	Fern and Jim Adams
Fridley area	Connie Metcalf, Fritz Christensen

Area	Mentors
Saint Paul	Mary Wenz, Kent Dickerman, Al Uhl
Mendota Heights	Roger Kneisl
Roseville area.	Mary Kaminski, John Stecklein
White Bear area	Shirley and Dick Pratt

If others of you would like to volunteer as a mentor in an area not covered above, please call me.

Also, acting on a member's suggestion, we will be asking new members to wear their name badges to lessons and playing times so that others may become acquainted with them more easily. If you have any other suggestions on how to improve our club's effectiveness in the orientation of new members, please phone me at 474-5873. ■

Vision Tennis Clinic gives STPC members new insights into their game

reported by Howard Most

The 27 STPC members who participated in the Vision Tennis Clinic on August 12 were uniform in their enthusiasm for the concepts they learned. "New dimensions," "Extremely helpful," "...Stresses concentration and how important mental attitude is while playing," and "Important mind and body routines" were some quotes from participants.

Michael Zosel, whose articles have been published this year in the Times, gave the clinic in two sessions. The rainy weather we've been having held off for almost the first session (the last 5 minutes were rained out); the second session was held indoors (happily, we made provisions for a rain out!). An autographed copy of Michael's book, Vision Tennis, was raffled off and Lu Shaughnessy was the lucky winner.

I personally now play better tennis using some of Michael's ideas, as expounded in Vision Tennis. We're fortunate to have Michael available to STPC, both as a clinician and a contributor to the Times. We hope to have more Vision Tennis clinics in the future. ■

Bridging the generations: grandparents hit the courts with their grandkids

From the "Uh Oh's" to the "Ah Ha's"

by Michael Zosel

When charging the net on a short ball, the anticipation of what may happen next causes most of us to hear disruptive internal voices. "Uh oh, I hope she doesn't pass me. She's ranked and everybody's watching..." The "Uh Oh's" make our breathing quicken, muscles tighten, and legs feel like lead.

Sometimes the "Uh Oh's" can be so overpowering that they cause us to get passed, volley easy sitters into the net, and get completely fooled by offensive lobs. As a result, the anxiety of coming to the net continues to grow, limiting our ability to take advantage of great opportunities to win big points in a match.

Tony Randzinger, the main character in the story Vision-Tennis, is haunted by the "Uh Oh's" until he learns the secrets on what to concentrate on when at the net. Here are some insights that can help you with your net game.

Dissect the point like a surgeon

Well trained surgeons do not panic when they make incisions in their patient's body. Instead of seeing blood or thinking "Uh Oh, my patient might die", they focus on diagnosing the organ that needs repair and performing the task in an objective manner. Although it is against hospital policy, excellent surgeons could perform successful surgery on their own children. Now that's mental toughness.

See the extraordinary in the ordinary

Ordinary tennis players usually just watch the ball when they approach the

net. Great volleyers like McEnroe and Navratilova are able to see the upcoming play with extraordinary detail by concentrating on the specific cues of their opponent. With intense curiosity, they carefully watch the movement of their opponent's rackethead. Of course, they always maintain a hard focus on the ball. But, with their peripheral vision, they can pick out the direction and spin of the shot. This enables them to make split second decisions on whether to spring into the forehand or backhand volley position. Because their anticipation is so quick, they experience no fear as they step forward and carve their volleys into the open court.

Think "ah ha" when anticipating the shot

When we watch captivating movies, we become absorbed in watching the storyline with heated anticipation. After getting enough clues, we are naturally motivated in trying to figure out what will happen next. When we are able to determine who may have committed the murder, we think, "Ah Ha! I think he killed him. I can't wait to find out if I'm right." Playing tennis is a lot like watching a movie. The only difference is you are holding a racket instead of a box of popcorn.

When I teach tennis players how to read passing shots and lobs at the net, I ask them to say "Ah Ha!" out loud. It blocks out their "Uh Oh's" and reminds them to watch their opponent's cues with intense curiosity. Most importantly, it speeds up their reaction times dramatically. You may want to try it for yourself sometime. This concentration technique has been carefully researched by a team of sports scientists from the University of Florida. In controlled studies, they have been able to increase tennis players' mental quickness by an average of 100 milliseconds—a 13% improvement.

In tennis, where the ball can travel approximately 150 miles an hour, it is essential that you block out your "Uh Oh's" by focusing on the fascinating "Ah Ha's" of the game. Practice hard and who knows, you may become the next McEnroe or Navratilova. ■

PROFILES by George Erickson

Starting this month, the Times will profile our members who put in such hard work as captains. Watch this space for your captain!

Charles and Margaret Mercer

Charles Mercer began his tennis career some 60 years ago by toting his own net to the Nicollet courts — now called Martin Luther King Park. But minor problems (like work) intervened and it wasn't until he joined the Senior Tennis program ten years ago that he began to play regularly. In fact, Charles credits his wife, Margaret, with getting him involved in senior tennis. Unfortunately, Margaret, who also captained for many years, has since retired from tennis for health reasons. Charles, however, recently completed his eighth year as captain, mostly at the Decathlon Club and the Nicollet Tennis Center.

When asked what he likes about Senior Tennis, Charles mentions the enjoyment of playing tennis with good, amiable people, and admits that he is well satisfied with the program. In addition, he apparently has his players well trained to get their own subs and to collect from them.

A native of Minneapolis, Charles worked with Pioneer Rim and Wheel in Minneapolis and later in Fargo before returning to Minneapolis as its Vice President. Since then, he volunteers for the Richfield Community Center and for Meals on Wheels when not tied up with woodworking, travel and fishing.

Captains' corner by Chuck Slocum

Well, the new indoor season begins. Check the schedule this month and note any changes at your location. There may be a few more next month, but by then we should have all the corrections in.

Review the rules and be a good sport. Be on time, so that you can use the full playing period. It is each regular's responsibility to make a sub available if you can't attend, collect the fee from the sub, and notify your captain of the change. We have more facilities available this year and that means more participants. Remember these are games, not the US Open! Encourage new players and don't be intimidated.

Please check your rosters to be sure all your players are members of STPC. Because of liability, we can't afford freeloaders.

For those of you who are scheduled at the Flagship, Oakdale and Southdale clubs, please don't call the clubs and bother them. Refer all questions to your captains or me, and we'll get answers for you. Have a good season! ■

Pete Robinson

While working for Honeywell in Minneapolis and Florida, Pete Robinson had little time for tennis, but began to get serious about it some 13 years ago, then joined the Senior Tennis program six years later and has since captained teams at Williston, Northland, Nicollet and the Decathlon Club.

Pete joins me in his frustration with players who don't use good "on court etiquette." Those who return balls to a server (between points) without looking to see if the server is ready to receive them, and those who dispute line calls. Pete agrees that just observing two rules would avoid a lot of problems: 1. It's your call only when the ball is in your court, and 2. If you don't KNOW it's out, it's GOOD.

On the plus side, he loves the game for the exercise, the fun and the relationships it has provided. Given the opportunity to change things, Pete says he is pretty happy with the club as it is. Apparently, this extends to his players, who rewarded him with a dinner at Lord Fletcher's a year or two ago. (Sure, Pete, but what have they done for you lately?)

As for non-tennis involvements, Pete keeps retirement from getting dull with racquetball, enjoys working a variety of word puzzles and watching pro football. ■

Change at Nicollet

George Erickson announces that the session on Sunday at the Nicollet Tennis Center is from 2-3:30 PM, not 2-3 PM as stated in last month's schedule. If you are a 3.0-3.5 player, call George to sign up as a sub or regular for this time slot! ■
