JACK DOW TOURNEY ENDS WITH AWARDS

by Carol Hall

The First Annual Jack Dow Round Robin and Tournament concluded August 23 on a high note. The closing ceremony began as jazz musician and STPC training director Percy Hughes was presented the Jack Dow Trophy for his dedication, enthusiasm and service to STPC.

Hughes, 73, is the first recipient of the trophy. It will be awarded annually to a member, chosen by membership vote, whose contribution has been outstanding.

Among his many achievements, Hughes is an original organizer of STPC River Falls Tennis Camp, member of the Tennis Hall of Fame for development of senior tennis programs, and the oldest person (at 64) to pass the US Professional Tennis Association's instructor test in the history of professional tennis. He is extremely well-liked for his kindness and gentle sense of humor, and has been an STPC member for 14 years.

As Jim Dow, son the late Jack Dow, presented the trophy, "Wow! Wow!" was all the surprised Hughes could muster at first. He then expressed his love for Jack Dow and the club and thanked everyone. Apologizing for having to leave early, Hughes said, "Story of my life. I have to go to a music engagement!"

The 98th Street Club was bustling with tournament registration for the First Annual Jack Dow Tournament.

Al Claseman and Sara Wagner of tournament sponsor Health Partners presented first place awards to Round Robin and Tournament winners. Tournament Director Ernie Greene gave out second place awards.

Several door prizes went to spectators and winners. They were donated by Health Partners, Prince Sporting Goods, Michael Lynne's Tennis Shop and Embers Restaurant. Additional sponsors were Northwest Racquet Club, KLBB Radio, the Jack Dow Fund and the Jack Dow family.

Matt Little headed the tournament committee for the 5-day event.

Rain on Day One moved play indoors. The tournament site,

Membership Drive Begins This Month!

STPC is counting on your help! In order to maintain our membership strength at 1500+, we need to bring in 200 new members a year. So tell your friends about the benefits of belonging to STPC. Most new members join because they heard about STPC from their friends.

To make membership even more appealing, anyone joining STPC between September 1 and December 31 not only gets membership for those months, they get 1997 too. This is like getting up to 4 months free!

A membership coupon is included in this month's edition of the Times. Give it to a friend and help our club grow!

The tournament exceeded its goal of 200 participants, with 217. One-third played in the round robin competition.

STPC Honors Percy Hughes

Percy has his day at River Falls; first recipient of Jack Dow Trophy

PERCY'S DAY

by Phil Steinberg

The admiration society was out in full force on August 6 at the River Falls Tennis Camp. Over 80 members of the Senior Tennis Players Club gathered to pay homage to one of the most beloved and respected members of our organization. It was Percy Hughes's Day; and a gala day it was.

Sitting at the head table with his lovely wife, Deloris, Percy almost looked embarrassed as he realized he was the reason everyone was there. They were there to honor him for all the great contributions he had made to STPC over the past 13 years.

Also seated at the head table were our President Sue Larson and her friend Lloyd Layton, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Boyer, Ginny Owens, WCCO personality Charley Boone, Lenny Brawerman, Ginny Heinzen, Chuck Supplee, and O. Donald Smith who did an amiable job as emcee.

Although this was not the Frier's Club, most of those who stood to praise Percy could not refrain from casting a clever remark to roast him. Sue Larson spoke of the many years that Percy was a mortician. Actually, they were the years that Percy worked in the dead letter room of the Post Office.

Charley Boone related the story about two elderly women who had died and gone to heaven. They found heaven to be a magnificent place. "Just think," said one of the women, "if we had not joined STPC we could have been here at least ten years ago."

Roger Boyer spoke of the times long ago when he and Percy played tennis at Loring Park and had to bring their own net. Lenny Brawerman reflected on how he and Percy learned to play tennis from the same great teacher, Art Lawrence. Lenny remembers Percy as the man who would never say "No" no matter what was asked of him.

Ginny Owens claimed she was half responsible for Percy becoming a tennis pro. They were both certified at the same time by the USTA. O. Donald Smith's memories went back a long way. He and Percy were friends practically all their lives.

As an additional pleasant gesture, many of Percy's friends in the audience rose to speak from their hearts in praise of the man they sincerely love and respect. Percy's wife claimed that her husband has three great loves: her and their family, tennis, and his

To members of our STPC:

My deepest thanks to each and every one of you for awarding me the Jack Dow Traveling Trophy, the first ever presented.

I am honored to have the opportunity of teaching and sharing my tennis life and goals with you. My complete satisfaction in the focus and growth of STPC is because of your accomplishments.

Thank you, thank you, thank you!

GRANDPARENT-GRANDCHILD ROUND ROBIN

by Phil Steinberg

It is not often that STPC puts on an activity that involves the entire family. When they do, it's something to remember for a long time. Such an affair was the Second Annual Grandparent-Grandchild Round Robin held July 20 at Valley View Courts in Bloomington. The tournament attracted 44 players, up 50 percent from the previous year. Among the players were 13 grandfathers, 9 grandmothers, 6 granddaughters and 16 grandsons. The entrants were divided into two groups determined by the age of the grandchildren.

The youngest group contained grandchildren up to 16 years of age. The older group had players from 16 to 28, the age of the oldest participating grandchild. Teams in each group that won their first sets entered the Championship Bracket. The losers comprised the Consolation Bracket. Gift certificates were awarded to the winners in each bracket of each age group.

In the younger category, the Champions were Vivian Bratt and her grandson Ryan. Second place went to Walter Kofski and his grandson Michael. The consolation prize went to Phyllis Roff and her grandson Justen.

In the older category, the Champions were Bob Eidem and his grandson Erik Johnson. Second place went to Bill Adam and his grandson Dick. The consolation prize went to Harley Wishart and his grandson Jamie. Although prizes were awarded to just six players, everyone was definitely a winner.

It was Michael Zosel the tennis pro and author along with our president Sue Larson who conceived the idea of staging an intergenerational event. As a result, the first Grandparent-Grandchild Round Robin Tournament became a reality last year. The success of the contest and its increasing popularity shows it to be a sound concept.

This year's Grandparent-Grandchild Tournament was coordinated by Lee Warner and Firmin Alexander. All vital information was stored on Lee's computer. Lee and Firmin did an excellent job of pairing the various teams and determining which courts they were to play on. Despite the difficulty of this task, the contest ran without a flaw.

In many cases three generations of each family were present. Parents of the grandchildren passionately rooted for their teams. Dedication was exemplified by Kevin Young, the grandson of Firmin Alexander. Kevin was so determined to not disappoint his grandfather, he entered the tournament in spite of the fact that he had just recently injured a ham string muscle at a hockey camp. Firmin and his grandson were the defending champions from last year's contest.

Tennis was the main object of the tournament, and some very good tennis was played, but fun and enjoyment were the dominating factors. Everyone had a good time. The Michael Lynne Tennis Shop graciously provided the tennis balls used in the competition.

How often do we get an opportunity to play tennis or any other sport with our grandchildren? And how important is that bond? The contest is over, but the memories linger on and will become a conversation piece around the Thanksgiving table and at other family gatherings. Now is the time to plan on entering next year's Grandparent-Grandchild Round Robin Tournament.

Captain's Profiles

by George Erickson

GLEN GULLIKSON

Back in 1934, in the small town of Unalaska, Wisconsin, a determined, seven-year-old boy sawed and shaved a board into something that resembled a tennis racquet. No strings—just a solid board with a wooden handle. With his wooden racquet and discarded, “well-skinned” tennis balls that had wintered-over in the snow, Glen and his friends set off down the yellow-brick-road to tennis fame, if not fortune. That tour, however, was short-lived, for the complexities of life intervened, separating Gully from tennis racquets for almost fifty years.

In 1946, shortly after both of his parents died, “Gully” enlisted in the Navy, which said, “no thanks” due to his colorblindness. The Navy’s loss turned out to be the Army’s gain, and in short order Gully was off to Japan for a nineteen-month tour in the Army of Occupation.

After a year at LaCrosse State College, Gully put in one year with Autolite, followed by a really sweet job: working for an ice cream and candy maker. Married in 1952, he began a life of “sevens”: seven years as a mail-sorter, working while rolling down the rails in a train on the Minneapolis-Chicago run; seven years of selling life insurance, and seven years of work at the US Army arsenal in Arden Hills.

Somewhere in those years, the Gulliksons had two boys and two girls. Unfortunately, Mrs. Gullikson, who was not a tennis player, died in 1994, and as Gully puts it, “I’m really lucky that the kids stayed in the Twin Cities area, so I get to see them often.”

After working at the arsenal, Gully became a painter for the State Farm insurance company, a job he held for eighteen years, retiring in 1992. It seems that painting is the work that he enjoyed the most, for when I asked him about hobbies, he named tennis (of course), golf and painting houses.

Gully returned to tennis in 1982, about the same time that he underwent two successful back operations for popped disks. By then, his two nephews, Tim and Tom Gullikson were becoming big names in tennis, with Tim ranked #16 in the world. Unfortunately, Tim, who had developed brain cancer, died last spring. Both of the Gullikson boys were also first-rate coaches (Gully taught them everything they knew), with Tom coaching Pete Sampras and Tim coaching Andre Agassi at the ‘96 Olympics as well as our Davis Cup team.

With all these tennis genes tearing around inside Gully, it’s not surprising that he’s qualified four times for the National Senior Olympics (in pole-vaulting, Gully?) and will be competing again next May. Until then, he continues to co-captain a 6-court group of men’s doubles at Nicollet Tennis Center with Don Bratt, as well as captain a summer mixed-doubles team near Shoreview, the city that’s been his home since 1955.

Like most of us, Gully has been active in his community, being a member of the VFW, doing church work, and being a past President of the Turtle Lake PTA.

Although he’s “Gully” to his friends, his slice ‘em, dice ‘em, chop ‘em, drop ‘em and spin ‘em strokes quickly have opponents saying “Golly!” not “Gully,” followed by “gee whiz,” and “frazmataz!” and even an occasional “blast, Blast, BLAST!!!”

STPC Meets the Media!

Radio. On August 2, Sue Larson, STPC President, and Matt Little, Vice President, were interviewed by Barbara Carlson on KSTP AM 1500 Radio. They promoted the club and the Jack Dow Tennis Tournament, and to all accounts, were great!

Cable TV. Metro Cable Network’s “Service to the Southwest” program will run a half hour presentation about STPC, featuring Sue Larson, President, and Chuck Slocum, Facilities and Program Director. The show will be broadcast at 6 p.m. on Monday, September 16 and Thursday, September 19.

Metro Cable Network can be seen on every local cable provider on Channel 6 in the Twin Cities metro area. Tune in and let us know how you liked the show!

Ad In by Sue Larson, President

Please note the beginning of the fall tennis schedule. You will find empty spaces waiting for you—particularly if you are an early riser and are willing to head out at 6:30 am.

Now a word about the summer season we just finished. The highlight of the summer was the First Annual Jack Dow Senior Tennis Tournament planned by Matt Little, Chair, and Ernie Greene, Tournament Director. Nearly 240 members participated, either as a player or volunteer. Now and then a few minor problems occurred, but for the most part I observed players finding new friends to play with in the regular season, lots of laughter and understanding when the rain changed the playing location on the first day. Ernie was always the Rock of Gibraltar, Matt displayed his usual managerial skills and Percy kept everybody sane. I know I had a wonderful experience and I hope you did also.

Another highlight for many was the Second Grandparent-Grandchild Round Robin. Families were sharing the fun of watching the play. I heard one of the grandchildren saying to his grandmother "Hit to the grandparent if you want the point!"

The Team Tennis League continues to improve under the leadership of John Connolly. Over 100 members participated as regulars or substitutes. The winning teams are listed elsewhere—but I believe everyone was a winner.

A bonus plan for new members started September 1. Any new members who join between September 1 and December 31 receive membership for 1996 and 1997, a potential bonus of up to four months, for only $20. Last year 136 members were added to our list. I am convinced we can do even better this year, but only with your help.

I am off to start the drills at Nicollet as well as an aerobics class because my legs need faster action and my return balls are attracted to the net. I'll keep you informed of my progress—in the meantime, have a Fall full of lots of tennis!

See you on the courts.

RON COWDEN IS ALIVE AND WELL AND LIVING IN NEW HOPE

Contrary to an announcement in the August Senior Tennis Times, Ron Cowden is not dead.

The reason the announcement was printed was because the Post Office returned Ron's July newsletter to the editor, stamped (in large, red, unfriendly letters) DECEASED. Obviously, they were wrong.

We apologize to Ron and his family and friends for any unhappiness this announcement caused. As a result of this error, we will now accept no death announcements unless we are notified by the immediate family or see an obituary published in the newspaper. And we will certainly look at Post Office mailings with a much higher degree of skepticism.

As the saying goes, "In God we trust... everyone else must provide documentation."

devotion to music. She had to admit that at times she wonders where she and their family fit into this pattern.

The banquet was co-chaired by O. Donald Smith and Chuck Supplee. Any time Chuck Supplee organizes an event, you can rest assured it will be done to perfection. He and O. Donald picked the wild flowers that adorned each table. Appropriately, the flowers were placed in tennis ball containers. Helium-filled balloons completed the centerpieces. A delicious buffet was climaxed by a chef-carved Baron of Beef. Musical entertainment was supplied by Len Chistensen at the keyboard. Thue Rasmussen took photos.

In his closing remarks, Percy spoke of the good times he had had with Jack Dow at the conception of STPC. Then with tears glistening in his eyes, Percy thanked all his friends for a most memorable evening.

Percy Hughes is a legend in his own time.

Captains' Corner

by Chuck Slocum

By now, the first annual Jack Dow Tournament for STPC members is over and it was a huge success. The credit goes to the participants, the tourney committee, the volunteers and especially to the Phone-a-thon, carried out by Ruth Aase, Ric Robles, Ed Fisher, Jack Wallin, Sue Larson, Donna Lucker, Emily Day, Dick Lidstone, Carol Hall, Char Hall, Penny Johnson, Mary Ann Moran, LaVerne Wilger, Grayce Aberle, Larry Lepley, Midge Loeffler, Margaret Nath and Lloyd Layton.

The indoor season has begun. Unfortunately, we had to release over 160 player spots because we couldn't find people willing to play at early hours. So if you don't get enough playing time this season, you know who to blame.

Captains should run a check on your players to be certain they have paid their dues and are bonafide members of STPC. This is vitally important because of liability potential problems. If you can't locate them in the membership roster and the monthly updates, check with Nancy Kaminski or the Membership Chair, Mary Earl McKinsey.

Good luck, and have a great season!

SUBS NEEDED AT NICOLLET

Men with an NWT A rating of 2.5-3.5 are needed as substitutes for the 1996-97 season group which plays at the Nicollet Tennis Center from 9-11 am Mondays. If you are interested, please contact Walt Kofski at 481-9123.

DOUBLES CLINIC FOR BEGINNERS

by Phil Steinberg

All new members rated 2.0 or below were invited to a special clinic. It was held July 24 at Wolfe Park. Twenty-four beginners were treated to an informal seminar that dealt solely with the game of doubles. Percy Hughes, Paul Stormo, Ginny Owens and Lenny Brawerman were the pros who ran the clinic. Doubles strategy and etiquette were clearly explained and demonstrated.

Marilyn Thome, Grayce Aberle and Char Hall put the clinic together, sent out the invitations, and served refreshments when it was all over. As a bonus, Percy Hughes, Paul Stormo, Ginny Owens and Char Hall played a smashing game of doubles to show how it should be done. It was a very entertaining and informative afternoon.

PREVENTING TENNIS ELBOW

How can you help alleviate tennis elbow? Try these exercises:

Dumbbell Curls. Use a light-weight dumbbell. Seated in a chair, hold a dumbbell in your hand, palm up and extended out just beyond the bend of the knee. With the arm resting on the thigh, bend the wrist upward as far as you can. Repeat 10 times. Then reverse the dumbbell grasp with the palm down. Bend the wrist down 10 times. Repeat with the other hand.

Tennis Ball Squeeze. Use an older, softer tennis ball. (If a tennis ball is too large or too rigid, use a smaller ball.) Grasp the ball in your hand and squeeze it, holding the squeeze for a few seconds, and then release. Repeat 25 times. Then repeat the exercise with the other hand. Work your way up to doing 2 or 3 repetitions.

UHL HAS CONVICTIONS; FIGHTS HARD FOR TRUTH

Poetic license allows me authority to bring you Uhl tidings before the season actually begins. That would be referring to, of course, feisty Al Uhl (pronounced yule), 69, retired journalist and current cool tennis hand. Anyone who has the audacity to run for US Congress against titanic vote-getter Bruce Vento out of pique (as Uhl did in 1976), deserves to be knighted for bravura and chutzpah (Yiddish for gall). Notwithstanding, Uhl garnered a respectable 3300 votes in a dying cause.

Before you get the idea this man is a political patsy, be informed he has more guts than the proverbial government mule as this saga unfolds. Born in St. Paul on June 25, 1927, Uhl graduated from St. Paul Murray with a talent for journalism. Pursuing his interests doggedly, he got his BA from the University of Minnesota's Journalism School in 1949. Before launching his career in the salt mines, he took a five-month tour of Europe. Not only did he work at various jobs while touring the Continent but managed to attend a French school to learn the language. Back to the USA, Uhl worked at the Twin Cities Arsenal for 18 months during the Korean conflict. He then switched to retail by running his mother's grocery business.

Getting his feet wet in journalism, Uhl was hired as a reporter for the Ortonville Independent and Graceville Enterprise. He slaved away at the two weeklies for starvation wages and lasted for six months. Next stop was the Crookston Daily Times where he toiled as an editor/reporter for 18 months doing everything but oiling the presses. It was back to St. Paul and a lowly stint as delivery boy for the Pioneer Press and Dispatch. Three years later he became a copy reader, subsequently attaining positions as assistant wire and news editor.

Uhl resigned from the St. Paul papers in 1959 to become copy chief for Honeywell's bimonthly internal publication with a circulation of some 70,000 readers. He was promoted in 1965 to General Manager of all Honeywell publications, a position he held until retirement 27 years later. It was then, under the aegis of ex-STPC president, John Steeklein, that Uhl became a serious contender for senior tennis activities.

Teaming up with the indomitable Dick Pratt, Uhl developed a computer program to record standings, schedules and scores for the Genuine Seniors League comprised of six teams. He was also allied with Al Braasch in White Bear and served as a league captain in that area. Uhl is on the STPC Board with the exalted title of Secretary and fulfills his position with efficiency and dedicated work.

A stocky, 5'9", blue-eyed, speedy and aggressive tennis competitor, Uhl has a spinner shot that drives opponents to distraction. Other hobbies than tennis include carpentry (rebuilding houses), reading three newspapers daily, travel and pouring over magazines with serious and meaningful messages. Uhl states he would not have gone into the newspaper business if he had to do it all over again. "It's misleading, seductive and favors the rich," he implies. He cites the Wall Street Journal as a model paper with high integrity, great coverage and sound editorial policy.

Uhl's personal philosophy is tightly packaged—"everyone too money-conscious—we've gotten in the mode to believe but don't believe—our whole concept based on forgiveness but society unforgiving—country is at war against war." He believes the country is coming into troubled times as witnessed by technological advances that are eliminating work.

A Unique Solution to Eating Your Vegetables Or Getting A Child to Eat Theirs!

On those days when "eating your vegetables" becomes a chore, treat yourself, your children or grandchildren to a couple of delicious Phyto Bears™. Each unique, natural, Dietary Supplement Phyto Bear provides the nutritional equivalent of 4 ounces of freshly-squeezed vegetable juice. The organic fruits and veggies are picked at maturity; this extract process maintains 80% of the vitamins, plant enzymes, minerals and fibers, and also keeps 90% of the phytochemicals (nutrients) that occur in raw fruits and vegetables. A proprietary blend of flash-dried broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, garlic, kale, onion, papaya, pineapple, tomato, turnip and Manapol®, in a base of vegetable gelatin and natural fruit fructose. Phyt-Aloe®, contains the equivalent of 8 ounces of the above juices, per capsule. Man-Aloe® supports the body's natural defense system.

For tennis players and Senior Olympians; SPORT and EM-PACT™ are designed to help support athletic performance (workouts, mowing, etc.) and the body's natural recovery process. I've used both for one year with great results. Pro athletes: Cleveland Indians, top Olympic athletes, runners, race walkers and dozens have endorsed these products without pay.

PLUS and MPV are designed to help support the endocrine system's natural production and balance of hormones, male and female. I've had great results with both, restoring lost muscle while burning body fat. A top body researcher, Dr. Gil Kaats, in controlled studies, says these products are the best he's tested in improving lean to fat ratios.

For those interested, the president of Mannatech will be here September 26, Holiday Inn West, 394/169, Saint Louis Park, at 7 pm.

"Research has shown that the determining factor for the presence of health or disease involves the body's capacity for the creation, maintenance and control of energy." Dr. Bill Fioretti, Ph.D. "When phytochemicals are added to the diet, the capacity of human genes to protect and restore optimal health is far greater than previously recognized." H. Reg McDaniel, MD

With genetics going for me, my mother soon to be 102, my goal is to retain or improve quality of life. The new Nutraceutical Law, passed by Congress, will soon be implemented and these products are the cutting edge in Nutraceutical Technology. These are the most unique, powerful and beneficial products I have used, tested and sold in my 17 years in the nutrition business. These products are sold only by individual associates through network marketing. Why? After 30 months of growth, we sell more Manapol (the patented base ingredient in all the products) in 6 days than the developer, Carrington Labs, sold in 6 years. Reason—Great results, people telling people.

You can buy retail, wholesale for small initial fee, or let us help you build a part-time business if so inclined.

"The people who have helped this 'big machine' are unrewarded and our capital is going overseas," he stresses. He follows that athletes are paid exorbitant salaries and that publicly paid stadiums are "show biz and legalized theft."

"We are losing our feel for community values," Uhl avers, "and instead of fighting poverty our society seems to be blaming and fighting the poor. For example, take our transportation system. Traffic is more congested and we could do with fewer cars. Conclusion: we have a woefully inadequate public transit system that's expensive to users and limited in coverage. Solution: tax cars and gasoline for space and wear and tear on society and spend the money to subsidize and improve urban public transit."

And now for the good news: Uhl is married to the former Nancy Adair and the couple enjoys two children and three grandchildren. Above all, Uhl is bluntly honest and unafraid of criticism. And as a senior tennis player, he is beyond reproach!

Uhl as in jewel!
