JULY 1997

A Big Thank You

Thank You, STPC

A Letter from Roger Boyer

This is my seventh attempt to write this thank you. Each time I have had to put it aside because the words I own are inadequate to express my appreciation for all the things the STPC has done to brighten my work and life. A better name for the organization might be STAC—the Senior Tennis Angels Club.

Since my first exposure to STPC over ten years ago, this organization and many individual members have found ever increasing ways to help me. Here are just a few of them:

- STPC's generous donation of $1000 last year and again this year to InnerCity Tennis to help provide a tennis and youth development program for youngsters who otherwise could not afford to play.

- Asking me to head the Bolger Clinic, again with proceeds going to InnerCity Tennis.
- Joining my tennis instructor development classes. So far, more than 20 of your members have developed tennis teaching skills and are working in numerous programs in the community.
- A growing list of your members are volunteering to become mentors for youngsters in the InnerCity Tennis programs.
- Many of you have served as eager and willing students whenever I have conducted USPTA testing of new teaching professionals—often when asked at the last minute.

The most helpful thing STPC has provided me and the community is your attitude. You do everything with great joy, enthusiasm, and caring.

You are truly Tennis Angels.

Thank you,

Roger Boyer

Line Calls

By Dick Lidstone, President

Sue Larson has asked that I accept her resignation from the Board so that she might pursue other interests. I am pleased that she wishes to continue working on the Jack Dow Tournament committee. Her contribution to this committee is important for the success of the Jack Dow Tournament. Sue continues to contribute just as she did in her three terms on the Board, the last two as a most effective president. I will miss her contributions and guidance as I reluctantly accept her decision.

I am sure many of our members were disappointed, even miffed, at the delay in receiving the June Senior Tennis Times. Before you jump all over someone, the delay was caused because the Post Office held up delivery through a misunderstanding in interpreting postal regulations. The newsletters were sent in on schedule. While I'm on it, though, Nancy Kaminski, our editor, does a wonderful job of putting the information she receives into a presentable, readable format with a minimal time lapse so that we can get our Times. It's not easy, or fun for that matter, having to chase down articles that should be in by the twentieth of the month preceding the current publication. She does such a nice job with the patience of Job. Thanks, Nancy.

STPC continues to emphasize opportunities for becoming a better, or maybe a more comfortable, tennis player. At a quick glance, those attending the Vision Tennis clinic put on by Mike Zosel, and arranged by Bill Connell, seemed to be most attentive and participative. Doubles Strategy sessions will finish on June 27; I hear it's most successful, thanks to Sue Larson and Lloyd Layton. And on June 12, Percy and his teaching staff had about 45 people out for tennis lessons at Aquila. As Sue aptly pointed out in one of our discussions, training is not only needed but wanted by our members.

Activities by the Single Senior Set is going full steam ahead. Recent neat events were a golf outing, arranged by Carol Brown, and the Lake Harriet band concert, arranged by Carol Curry. Events are planned right through February, 1998.

So you want tennis? Hit 'n Giggle, Super Seniors and TeamTennis have all started. See you on the courts! ■

About the June Outing...

TeamTennis 1997 Update

by Carol Hall

STPC TeamTennis has been renamed "Stecklein TeamTennis." This year's coordinating committee, headed by John Connelly, decided to credit John Stecklein who founded the popular summer competition, by using his name.

Play this season began June 17 with a record 160 players (including subs) and 15 teams. (The June newsletter indicated 16 teams. However, it was necessary for one to be dropped.)

Bernice Hanson, a Level B captain (3.0 and below), reports a lot of Level B teams ended up with close scores following the first day's play. "People were enjoying themselves and it was very competitive," Hanson said, owing to teams being split into two skill levels—a new innovation this year.

Both Level A and B teams report using many subs. As this trend is expected to continue, a larger sub list would greatly help the captains. If you'd care to get in some good competitive tennis on Tuesday mornings as a TeamTennis sub, please contact John Connelly at 771-2664. ■

Twelve Lesson Awards

Congratulations to Annie Favors, Sam Favors, Marita Lindman, Luther Prince, Gordon Sanders, John Sims, and Dorothy Trow, the latest members to complete their twelve lessons.

Remember to keep track of your lessons and let your instructor know when you've completed the set of twelve. ■

Schedule Changes

Please note the following changes to the summer outdoor playing schedule:

- Aquila Park: The captain for Wednesday 9–11 a.m. is now Jim Lidstone, 938-4088.
- Brooklyn Center High School: Starting time for the sessions on Tuesday and Thursday is 8 a.m., not 8:30 a.m.
- Fridley Commons: The group headed by captain Jim Vint has moved from Fridley Commons to Irondale High School, located in New Brighton off Long Lake Rd. at 25th Street. NW. Play is at 8–10 a.m., Saturday, for men and women, 3.0–3.5. For more information, contact Jim at 636-0071.
- Valley View Park: This location is no longer available. ■

Captains' Profiles

by Carol Hall

JoAnne Christensen

Although actually a shade taller, JoAnne Christensen is the epitome of "five foot two, eyes of blue." The petite Christensen, who captains a women's league at Wooddale, is also upbeat and positive.

"I have such a nice group of women," she said. "I'm glad they let me be their captain. I consider it a privilege!"

Christensen is a native Minnesotan. She was reared in tiny Dundee (pop. 189) in the southwestern part of the state, where, as a teen, she helped out in her father's grocery and meat locker business. She's since lived in Austin and the Twin Cities. But her favorite travel destination is a far cry from home. Christensen has been to Bangkok, Thailand four times.

How can a place famous for Buddhist temples, hot spicy food, and a climate ranging from suffocating to hot, attract a small town Minnesota woman—who's a Lutheran to boot?

She's also a mom. One of Christensen's two sons, a financial analyst, was relocated to Bangkok by his employer. Christensen goes there to visit him and his Thai wife and their two children.

Another, not so extreme, destination for Christensen was Roland Garros in France for the French Open. She attended this major tennis event in 1994 with her daughter, who was then an exchange student in Vienna. They were thrilled to witness Martina Navratilova and Goren Ivanisevic play, although both lost their matches.

Travel obviously is high on Christensen's list of favorite pastimes. Being with her children and (five) grandchildren, reading biographies and nonfiction, and walking or running at Roseville's Central Park are not far behind. But tennis ranks number one. If there were any doubt, "Tennis isn't a matter of life and death...it's more important than that!" is boldly calligraphed on Christensen's personal stationery.

"It never dawned on me that I really wanted to play tennis forever until I got into STPC," said Christensen, a beginner when she joined. "It was then I got bitten by the bug."

Christensen became a member in 1992 following the death of her husband, Bob. Like other newly widowed persons who've joined STPC, she credits the exercise and new friendships made through regular play with helping her through this difficult time.

Christensen also emphasizes that tennis wasn't something she shared with her husband: "It was outside our marriage and circle of friends. It was mine, not ours. It was part of me starting a new life."

Bob Christensen was an attorney in Saint Paul. He shared a general practice with his father, Irving Christensen, in the firm, Christensen and Christensen.

Bob and JoAnne met while attending the University of Minnesota. They married in 1961. Bob got his law degree from William Mitchell College of Law. JoAnne, who worked her way through the University as a long distance operator for Ma Bell, earned a BS in elementary education. She taught fourth grade in the Twin Cities at Lowry School and Smith School for two years. But rearing a family took precedence and she became "a full time mom for twenty years."

The Christensen's two sons and daughter are all graduates of Saint Olaf College. Tom went on to earn a law degree, Scott, a doctorate in international relations, and Teri holds a business position in marketing.

"I'm really proud of my kids," Christensen said. "I've never been sorry that I stayed at home to care for them."

Reflecting her optimistic outlook on life, Christensen's advice for better tennis is, compliment, don't criticize your partner; if someone wrongly criticizes you on the court, finish the game, then speak to that person privately.

And as her league consists of all women, keep the play going—chat later! ■

Love Stories

by Norm Diamond

Lyla Anderegg's Gardening Genius Fulfills Idealism

After Lyla Anderegg, 74, has taken you on le grande tour of her magnificent garden, you are so awed by the flora and fauna panoply that mere words cannot do justice to the scenery. It's like following Luther Burbank as a speaker at a horticulturist seminar where the audience now moves fitfully in their seats as you babble on. But with my captive readers loyal to the end, I am now girded to highlight the amazing life of a vibrant, intellectual, and gifted woman.

Lyla and physician husband Al have a framed map of the world pierced with pins that show the hundreds of places they've traveled to in their 46 years of marriage. The map resembles the locations of all the McDonalds fast food restaurants in the universe. The exotic countries Lyla has experienced are a far cry from Albert Lea where she was born. Then came the jump to Minneapolis where she graduated from Washburn High.

You will note that in addition to her numerous travels, she followed Doctor Al to the many places he navigated to complete his medical training en route to becoming a full-fledged internist. Lyla received her BA in psychology from the University of Minnesota followed by an MA in communications from Northwestern University in Evanston. Then it was on to the Universities of Chicago, California at Berkeley and back to the U of M to pursue her educational psychology career.

Her employment until her retirement in 1993 is as lengthy as Shakespeare's Hamlet and will have to be compressed to meet our publication's space allocation. Let the jousting begin: high school teacher in Bemidji; counselor at Northwestern; YWCA program director in Evanston; assistant buyer at Powers; psychology and speech instructor at Eastern Washington State U; assistant professor in psychology at the U of M; psychologist in Chicago and Denver in their public schools; personal development instructor Denver YWCA; research assistant for the Medical Society of San Francisco and U of M; psychology instructor at St. Olaf College; and associate professor for 15 years at Augsburg College. Whew! My typewriter is winded!

Her philosophy of "developing one's self to the maximum in as many directions as possible" is inspirational and enhances the fact she is the living legend role model. She has learned to improve her piano playing and has mastered the ski slopes for 40 years in Utah and Colorado. Lyla joined the STPC in 1984 and recalls playing initially on the Blake School courts. For the past few years she has confined her physical activities to golf at the U of M course. Other than fantastic gardening and golf, her other hobbies include interior decorating, needlepoint, Penumbra and Guthrie theaters, Minnesota Symphony, reading and active participation in the Women's Club.

The Andereggs are a childless couple but have Pepito, a pedigreed Chihuahua, running the household with warming efficiency. This is her third Chihuahua, all averaging about 15 years life span. Lyla has a secret passion that can now be revealed before Geraldo gets her on TV. She has collected some 40 pairs of high-spiked shoes in her wardrobe to uplift her soul (no pun intended). Considering she's a petite 5 foot tall scaling only 103 pounds, this is a feat of balance when she walks. Of course, this collection is a drop in the bucket to Imelda Marcos' accumulation. But there's this big difference: Lyla has fulfilled life's promised obligations while Imelda is floundering in a fairy tale world down the proverbial toilet.

To cap off a lifetime of accomplishment, Lyla was recently inducted into the American Mensa organization whose members have taken a standard intelligence test to show they are smarter than 98% of the population. There's a bit of irony here because Lyla has said that "if I had to do it all over again, I would have finished my Ph.D. degree." But Lyla, doctors of philosophy don't make house calls but your husband could have before he retired!

Other than travel, the Andereggs delight in going out for dinner most evenings to search out quaint restaurants. Theirs is a life of learning, discernment, erudition, and fun. Both have great senses of humor and a zest for living. Like I've always said, people who travel to Siberia and Antarctica can't be all bad!

At deadline time, Lyla could not produce a picture that was current. So we have taken the editorial privilege of using a drawing that depicts Lyla in a meditative state. The resemblance is as though the genetic scientists had fashioned a clone of our profilee. ■

Playing Nice: Encouraging Civility on the Courts

by Bob Tischbein

There are rules and customs governing the playing of tennis that promote fairness and civility. Some of you might not be aware of them—after all, how many of you have read the USTA Rule Book? Here are a few "rules of the road" that are frequently violated. Look them over and mention them to your playing group if you think they're being ignored. Playing nice makes tennis so much more enjoyable for everyone!

Any call of "out," "let," or "fault" must be made instantly, otherwise the ball is presumed good and still in play. In this connection, "instantly" means that the call is made before either opponent has hit the return or the return has gone out of play. Most importantly, the ball is not out until it is called out.

If there is a clothing, shoes, equipment, or racquet malfunction during a point, the point will be finished before any corrective action is taken. After the point is over a reasonable delay may be allowed for a player to leave the playing area to repair shoes, clothing and equipment.

Your suggestions for court courtesy tips are appreciated. Please send them to: Bob Tischbein, 5471 Rowland Rd, Minnetonka, MN 55343. ■
