The 50+ tennis experience

August 2017

Jack Dow Round Robin 2017

Our really big tournament of the year took place in the first week of May. And the winners/finalists were:

- 3.0 Men: 1. Tom Keegan & Bob Woehrle;
2. Barry Gostchock & Mike Miller
- 3.0 Mixed: 1. Barry Gostchock & Linn Ostberg;
2. Linda Burich & Gary Lynn
- 3.5 Men: 1. Jerry Kneisl & Jim Hoialmen;
2. Paul Thomas & Tony Rau
- 3.5 Women: 1. Becky Beck & Annette Adam;
2. Sheila Bjore and Carol Rothe
- 3.5 Mixed: 1. Becky Beck & Brian Kretsch;
2. Ken Landro & Elizabeth Dolphin
- 4.0 Men: 1. Steve Bruell & Ronald Brandon;
2. Woody Gillette & Frank Segerstrom
- 4.0 Mixed: 1. Steve Bruell & Mike Woolsey;
2. Megan Bennett & Sheila Bjore

Yes, you read that right! In 4.0 Mixed, two men defeated two women. The sides were suggested by the women, who came very close to winning! Your Editor watched part of this long match. Wonderful!

Here are pictures of some of the contestants, roughly in order of the events:

In Memory...

Jolene Laurence

Jolene, age 62, of West St. Paul, passed away unexpectedly on April 21, 2017. Survived by husband, James; daughter, Micaela; brothers, Dennis and Dewane and beloved nieces, nephews, and extended family. Jolene loved her family and friends deeply and was loved back with equal fervor. She had an uncanny ability to get others to open up and share their stories. She had a belly laugh that made everyone laugh too. She will be dearly missed by all who knew her, including her tennis friends who played with Jolene last summer at the Lauderdale Courts. Memorials preferred to the National Alliance on Mental Illness or Suicide Awareness Voices of Education.

Shirley Pratt

Shirley Joy, age 87, of St. Paul, formerly of Minneapolis, passed away April 19, 2017. She was an active member of Central Presbyterian of St. Paul. In her retirement, she enjoyed tennis and teaching tennis to inner-city kids.

Shirley was a member of Senior Tennis from 1986. She served on the Board of Directors and in many volunteer roles. All who knew her will miss her generous and caring nature.

Paul Stormo

Paul, age 80, of Edina, passed away on May 4, 2017. Survived by his loving wife of 57 years, Ruth; son, David; daughter Karla (Jeff) Paul; and granddaughter, Sophia. Paul received his BS in mechanical engineering, and his MS in business from the University of Minnesota. His early career with Graco brought him to Germany and France where he lived with his family for seven years and became a self-described Europhile. After returning to the U.S., he worked as part-owner and CEO of an X-ray manufacturing company in Chicago and then as President of Artograph in Minneapolis. Exemplary of his leadership, he championed diversity and equality, promoted higher education, and granted scholarships to disadvantaged students. Paul was also an avid athlete. He completed three marathons, bicycled across Iowa, and golfed and skied around the world. In his fifties, he became a tennis teaching pro and taught novices, seniors, and underprivileged youth. He loved to help people succeed. He also enjoyed traveling throughout the world, piloting airplanes, navigating sailboats, and studying world affairs. He was infinitely curious and driven. Paul was, above all, well-loved by his family and many friends for his kindness and generosity, and his unfailing commitment to doing the right thing. He graced us with his indomitable, optimistic spirit and inspired us to be more than we are. Paul was a member of Senior Tennis from 1990. Your editor remembers Paul teaching beginning classes with Percy Hughes. Percy would tease Paul about his exercise warmups, referring to him as “Dr. Paul Stormo, also known as Doctor Death.” Right up to his final illness, Paul served on the Board of Directors, bringing his knowledge of organizational effectiveness to our Board.

Jon Holmgren, President of STPC remembers Paul: “It is a great loss that Paul Stormo passed away on Friday. As a former board member in good standing and as a friend he will be missed. I only knew him for a short few years, but I felt I knew him well. He was a kind and gentle man, generous with his time and that wonderful smile. The tribute to him on his leaving coaching tennis last Saturday at the ICT Gala was fitting and well deserved. As he was director of tennis for many years he will be missed by many young and old tennis players. You served us well Paul, you served us well.”

Dorothy Werner

It is with sadness that we learn of the unexpected death of Dorothy Werner last February. Dorothy was an enthusiastic lifetime tennis player from Woodbury. She had left for her Florida home as soon as it turned cold in Minnesota. There, she could play almost every day.

In February, she played in the morning and was headed to a local restaurant for lunch with friends. She never made it. A speeding car hit her car broad-side and she died in the Emergency Room.

Dorothy had a rich, interesting life, filled with family, a long rewarding teaching career, travel and tennis.

She leaves behind her four children: Mark, David, Bruce, Ann, their spouses and many grandchildren.

Editor Emotes!

By David Sommer

I have to report a sad thing. In the last several months, at least five of our play groups have failed because the captain had to retire for good reasons (health, moving away, etc.) and no one in the group was willing to take on the duty of captain. This stimulated me to check my own summer group at Lauderdale. (Not a walk-on group.) I asked the purely hypothetical: “If I could no longer be captain, would you be willing to take on the duty?” I was surprised that only two players were willing, and both are in their mid-eighties!

I’ve been a captain almost since I joined STPC in 2000! Yes, it’s work. But the rewards!

- I’ve made many good friends, who appreciate what I do and are willing to help out when needed.
- I see the benefits to my players in health, fun, and friendships.
- Sometimes I get to assist a struggling player to find a good coach or other help.
- AND I get to play all I want because I set the schedules!

Think about it!

Blog: Tennis' Hawk-Eye

What do you think of Hawk-Eye? No, not the Alan Alda character in the TV series *M*A*S*H* or the hero of James Fenimore Cooper's classic series of American frontier adventures called The Leatherstocking Tales. No, Hawk-Eye is the name given to the computer system invented by Paul Hawkins in 2001 that provides instant replays in tennis (and many other sports) that are a common part of the game these days for audiences. Indeed, commentators John McEnroe and Brad Gilbert at the 2017 Australian Open declared that Hawk-Eye should be on every court at every Grand Slam tournament.

I've never personally experienced replays in a match myself, nor do I understand a lot about the technical aspects of Hawk-Eye. But it's been deciding points, games, and even final outcomes of some tournament matches for fifteen years now. And I've got a few questions about it—maybe you do, too.

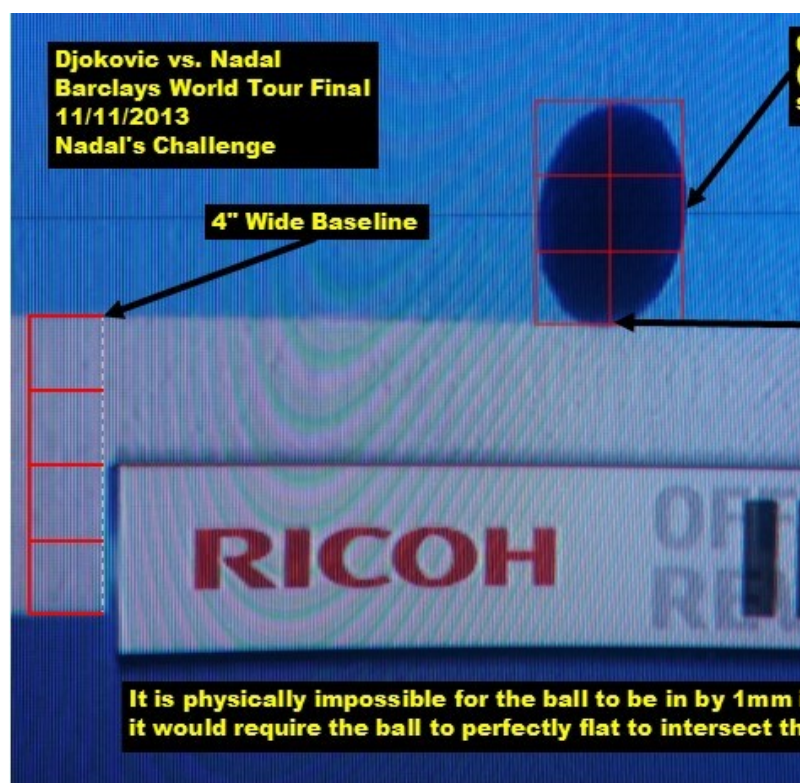

Some of us have been wondering for a while now about the shape of the ball that Hawk-Eye shows on the TV replays versus the actual shape of the ball when it hits the actual court surface. Does the entire area of the ellipse-shaped, oblong shadow of the ball that we see projected on TV by Hawk-Eye represent the actual ball bouncing on the actual court surface? Even if the real ball elongates a little when it strikes the court, would it be that much, that shape, and in that proportion to the back or service line displayed on the Hawk-Eye TV replay?

Take a look at two representations of the ball that I stole from the Internet. In the first one, the ball's actual impact area on the court is represented by the smaller, grey, center circle. If that impact area is even slightly beyond the back line, say, then the yellow area representing the rest of the ball can appear to be on the line to a camera above it on the ceiling looking down. But it is actually above (but not necessarily beyond due to the curvature of the ball) the back line if you view it from the side.

Ball compared with impact.

But, you say, anyone watching a Hawk-Eye instant replay on TV during a match knows the ball seems to be elongated like an ellipse when projected on the court surface in the replay. Apparently the real ball does elongate in the direction it is travelling when striking the court and flattening a little bit against the court surface. But does the flattening and elongation of the ball extend only in the direction it is travelling, or does it extend sideways and backwards as well, however miniscule that may be?

Here's where sideline calls would be affected, it seems. Say the initial impact area of the ball on the court is a millimeter outside a sideline. If the flattening and elongating of the ball when striking the court spreads it a millimeter in that direction toward the side line edge, then the ball may well have caught the outside edge of the side line and be in. Does Hawk-Eye catch this fine a distinction?

Now look at the second illustration above. In this one, 1 millimeter of the back portion of the ball allegedly touches the very outside edge of the back or service line. That portion of the ball would seem to correspond to the yellow outside portion of the ball in the first illustration; if so, it is microscopically above the line, as seen from the side, and therefore out. Consider, too, that the entire ball would have to be compacted completely flat, virtually paper thin to catch the line as represented in the second illustration. Unlikely, if not impossible. What Hawk-Eye seems to need and does not have is an accurate view from the side.

The actual impact area has to be physically limited to where the back of the ball (for a service or back line call) or side of the ball (for a side line call) initially strikes and flattens minutely against the court. The rest of the Hawk-Eye or other digital representation of the ball for TV is not relevant as long as it is not the part of the ball nearest the line in question, as in the grey circle in the first visual above.

In most cases if not all, this actual impact area will be less than the diameter of the ball. That's because the ball does not and cannot completely flatten against the court across its entire width (as though a steamroller had compressed and flattened it to the thinness of a sheet of paper). As a fellow we all know and have heard a lot from lately might say, "Let me tell you, it never happened. Never happened. Believe me.... never happened."

Not incidentally, the Men's singles championship point in the 2017 Aussie final on Jan. 29 was decided on a sharply angled crosscourt forehand by Roger Federer that Hawk-Eye showed caught the outer half of the line. Everyone, including the Fed and Rafa Nadal, waited on Hawk-Eye to show the world who won. And as I'm writing this, there are regular replays of Hawk-Eye on TV at the 2017 Wimbledon that decide points "by millimeters," as the commentators like to say.

I seem to recall an instant replay system called "MacCam" years ago that replayed in super-slow motion the actual ball striking the court. The camera was positioned at the side of the court at ground level so you could see a ball clearing the baseline by fractions of an inch. I think it was named for John McEnroe for obvious reasons. Maybe that's what we need now. What do you think? But as our familiar friend might say, "Not gonna happen. Guarantee it, not gonna happen. Believe me... Not. Gonna. Happen. Make no mistake about it."

- Bill Cosgrove

Blog: Retiring for Dollars?

Watching Wimbledon, I wondered about players retiring in the first rounds, against Federer and Djokovic, for example, when they knew they were injured and probably unable to play 3-5 sets. McEnroe and other commentators say players not ready to play should give their spots to lucky losers from the qualifiers to play in their place. And then maybe get some of the money paid to first round losers for giving their place to a healthy player. Never heard of that before. Is that a good idea?

- Anonymous

Blog: Give the fans a break!

Responding to Anonymous, consider the fans. In his example, some fans who idolize Fed or Joker have spent much and traveled long distances to see their idol in a first-round match. So something must be done to avoid cheating the audience! One proposal is to give each ATP player two "free" withdrawals per year from majors or tour-level tournaments. For those two, they'd still get paid "as if" they'd started the match.

Fall/Winter Schedule 2016-2017

Up-to-date schedule is always on our website: www.seniortennismn.org

Want to find a place to play? Here's what you do:

Locate one or more locations, times, and the skill level that you'd like.

Call the captains responsible and ask if they have any regular or sub positions available.

If this doesn't accomplish what you want, call Facility Coordinators for places you'd like to play. They may be able to help you get a new group together. If no Facility Coordinator is shown, call Thue Rasmussen.

Note: some captains are actively seeking subs and/or regulars. Highlighting used as follows:

Regular players wanted	Subs wanted	Regulars and Subs wanted
------------------------	-------------	--------------------------

Play is usually September-April. Check with Captains for start/end dates. For corrections or changes to this schedule, contact David Sommer at 612-276-1313 or dsommer7@usiwireless.com
